Course Description

An introduction to the organization of recordable knowledge, with emphasis on library cataloging and classification. Students will examine current applications of Anglo-American Cataloguing Rules, MARC formats, Library of Congress and Sears Subject Headings, Dewey Decimal Classification and Library of Congress Classification. Metadata initiatives and the interpretation of technical documentation will be considered.

Course Objectives

At the conclusion of the course, the student will be able to:

1. Identify and discuss the functions of the library catalog.
2. Discuss the impact of cataloging decisions on patron access to library materials.
3. Discuss considerations in cataloging, classification, and catalog design for the provision of service to diverse and traditionally underserved patrons.
4. Create bibliographic descriptions of library materials using Concise AACR2 and USMARC standards.
5. Interpret Dewey and Library of Congress call numbers, using current schedules.
6. Define and explain the value of authority control and cross-referencing structure for names, uniform titles, and subject headings.
7. Define successive entry cataloging for serials and identify alternative searches for serials titles in library catalogs.
8. Identify and discuss current metadata initiatives.
9. Explain the importance of standards; locate, interpret and use standards documentation.
10. Locate, interpret and use technical documentation.
